

About Dr. Seth Meyers

Dr. Seth Meyers, Psy.D., is one of the world's leading licensed clinical psychologists specializing in relationship, anxiety, depression, and addiction issues. In addition to directing his LA-based private practice for clinically and chronically mentally ill men and women, he is renowned for his work with the Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health on various children's mental health and child welfare programs. He is also the author of the widely acclaimed self-help book, Dr. Seth's Love Prescription: Overcome Relationship Repetition Syndrome and Find the Love You Deserve (2010), and a regularly contributing blogger for Psychology Today.

As an esteemed authority in mental illness and health, Dr. Seth is a regular guest on nationally televised and radio broadcast news shows such as CNN, Dr. Drew, Good Morning America, The Early Show, Reuters TV, Cosmo Radio, ESPN, and Doctor Radio. He is also a frequent expert source for print publications including USA Today, Chicago Tribune, People, Cosmopolitan, In Touch, Men's Health, Men's Fitness, Women's Health, and Psychology Today, among others. He is often tapped to contribute as an expert on discussion topics such as romantic, familial and social relationship issues; addictions and compulsions; eating and behavioral disorders; irrational fears; and anxiety and depression.

Dr. Seth's credentials include a BA in Psychology from Vassar College, a Psy.D. in Clinical Psychology from the prestigious APA-accredited doctoral program at Yeshiva University, a pre-doctoral internship with Maimonides Medical Center in Brooklyn, NY, and a post-doctoral fellowship at the world-famous Weingart Center on Los Angeles' Skid Row, where he conducted addiction groups for the homeless.
